THE ASSASSIN GUITEAU.

His Story of the Shooting.

A Cold-Blooded Recital to a Newspaper Reporter.

The New York Herald publishes a long report of the auto-biography of the assassin Guiteau, as taken from his wretched lips, from which we copy the assassin's version of his murderous deed, as follows:

CONCEPTION OF THE ASSASSINATION.

"I conceived the idea of removing the President," Guiteau declares, "pending the answer, and as far as the Paris consulship had any influence on my mind at all it would have deterred me from the act, because I expected as a matter of fact that I would get the Paris consulship. After I conceived the idea of removing the President I did not go near Mr. Blaine or near the President to press my application. About two or three weeks intervened from the time that I called at the President's when the doorkeeper said, 'Mr. Guiteau, the President says it will be impossible for him to see you to-day,' to the time that I conceived the idea of removing him, during which time I was waiting patiently for my answer, which, as a matter of fact, I have never yet received. I had been pressing the President and Mr. Blaine for an answer and I thought that it would be better for me to keep away from them. They had my address and I thought if they concluded to give me the Paris consulship they would notify me or I should see an announcement of the appointment in the paper, and, as I have stated, after I conceived the idea of removing the President I did not go near the President or Mr. Blaine. My conception of the idea of removing the President was this: Mr. Conkling resigned on Monday, May 16, 1881. On the following Wednesday I was in bed. I think I retired about eight o'clock. I felt depressed and perplexed on account of the political situation, and I retired much earlier than usual. I felt wearied in mind and body, and I was in my bed about nine o'clock and I was thinking over the political situation, and the idea flashed through my brain that if the President was out of the way everything would go better. At first this was a mere impression. It startled me, but the next morning it came to me with renewed force, and I began to read the papers with my eye on the possibility that the President would have to go, and the more I read, the more I saw the complication of public affairs, the more was I impressed with the necessity of removing him. This thing continued for about two weeks; I kept reading the papers and kept being impressed, and the idea kept bearing and bearing and bearing down upon me that the only way to unite the two factions of the Republican party and save the Republic from going into the hands of the rebels and Democrats was to quietly remove the President.

PREPARING FOR THE CRIME.

"Two weeks after I conceived the idea my mind was thoroughly settled on the intention to remove the President. I then prepared myself. I sent to Boston for a copy of my book, 'The Truth,' and I spent a week in preparing that. I cut out a paragraph and a line and a word here and there and added one or two new chapters, put some new ideas in it and I greatly improved it. I knew that it would probably have a large sale on account of the notoriety that the act of removing the President would give me, and I wished the book to go out to the public in proper shape. That was one preparation for it. Another preparation was to think the matter all out in detail and to buy a revolver and to prepare myself for executing the idea. This required some two or three weeks, and I gave my entire time and mind in preparing myself to execute the conception of removing the President. I never mentioned the conception to a living soul. I did most of my thinking in the park and on the street, and I used to go to the Arlington and the Riggs House daily to read the papers.

WATCHING AN OPPORTUNITY.

"After I had made up my mind to remove him the idea when I should remove him pressed me, and I was somewhat confused on that. I knew that it would not do to go to the White House and attempt it, because there were too many of his employes about, and I looked around for several days to try and get a good chance at him; and one Sunday (the Sunday before he went to Long Branch) I went to his church in the morning. It was a small frame building, and I stood there at the door a moment. I was a little late; the services had progressed about one-third. I noticed the President sitting near an open window about three feet from the ground, and I thought to myself, 'That would be a good chance to get him.' I intended to shoot him through the back of the head and let the ball pass through the ceiling, in order that no one else should be injured. And there could not possibly be a better place to remove a man than at his devotions. I had my revolver in my possession when I first went to the church, having purchased it about ten days before the President's going to Long Branch. This was the Sunday prior to his leaving for Long Branch on Saturday. During that whole week I read the papers carefully. I thought it all over in detail. I thought just what people would talk and thought what a tremendous excitement it would create, and I kept thinking about it all the week. I made up my mind that the next Sunday I would certainly shoot him if he was in church and I got a good chance at him. Thursday of the same week I noticed in the paper that he was going to Long Branch, and on the following Saturday he did go to the Branch for Mrs. Garfield's health. I went to the depot all prepared to remove him. I had the revolver with me. I had all my papers nicely prepared. I spoke to a man about a carriage to take me, as I told him, over near the Congressional Cemetery. He said that he would take me over for $2, and seemed to be a very clever fellow and glad to get the job. I got to the depot about nine o'clock and waited there until the President's White House carriage drove up. About twenty-five minutes after nine the President and his carriage and servants and friends came up. He got out of his carriage. I stood in the ladies' room, about the middle of the room, watching him. Mrs. Garfield got out and they walked through the ladies' room, and the presence of Mrs. Garfield deterred me from firing on him. I was all ready; my mind was all made up; I had all my papers with me; I had all the arrangements made to shoot him and to jump into a carriage and drive over to the jail. Mrs. Garfield looked so thin and she clung so tenderly to the President's arm that I did not have the heart to fire on him. He passed right through the ladies' reception room, through the main entrance, and took the cars. I waited a few moments. I went outside the depot and walked up town toward the Riggs House and Arlington and the park. I think that I went to the park and sat there an hour or two thinking about it, and I went to my lunch as usual, and after my lunch I went to the library of the Treasury Department and read the papers as usual, and I think I stayed there until three o'clock on Saturday, and then I went out. I do not remember where I went particularly; I think I went to the Riggs, the Arlington or the park. That was after I left the library.

AN ASSASSIN IN AMBUSH.

"I noticed in the papers," Guiteau continues, "that he would be back the first of the week. I watched the papers very carefully to see when he would return, but he did not come back that week, but he did come back on the following Monday. The following Monday was a terribly hot, sultry day. I remember I suffered greatly from the heat, but notwithstanding that, I prepared myself again, and I went to the depot again on Monday with my revolver and my papers, but I did not feel like firing on him. I simply went to the depot. I sat in the ladies' waiting room. I got there ten or fifteen minutes before the train time, and I waited and thought it all over and made up my mind that I would not fire on him that day. I did not feel like it. The train came and he came, and Mr. James, the Postmaster General, was there and Mr. Hunt, the Secretary of the Navy, and their lady friends. They all came through the ladies' room together, and the President's son and a thickset gentleman that came from the White House to meet the President were there. They went right to the gate and got the President, and they all walked together to the President's carriage and they all got in and drove off. I stood on the entrance of the ladies' waiting room door, and I noticed James and Hunt there with their families, and the President and his friends drove up in his White House carriage and then James and Hunt went, and then I went. I got into a car and went up toward the Riggs House.

VIGIL OF A MURDERER.

"Well, I was watching for the President all that week. I got up one morning at half past five, thinking that I might get the President when he was out horseback riding, but he did not go out that morning. I sat there in the park for two hours watching for him with my papers and revolver, thinking that I might get a chance at him, but he did not go out that morning, so I went back to my room, took breakfast, put up my papers and my revolver and let the matter drop until night. In the evening after dinner at five o'clock, I went up to my room and got my revolver out and carried it in my pocket. This was either Wednesday or Thursday, I do not remember which, but I think it was Thursday night. He went out riding that night. I was in Lafayette Park opposite the White House watching for him, and about half past six the White House carriage drove up to the White House and waited a few moments, and the President and some gentleman, and a young man eighteen or twenty years old, whom, I presume was the President's son, got into the carriage. The young man sat with his back to the driver and the President and his gentleman friend (whoever he was) sat on the back seat. They drove out the entrance nearest the Treasury Building and passed right along the east side of Lafayette square toward the Arlington. They drove down by the Arlington and out on Vermont avenue. I walked out of the park pretty rapidly and I saw them from the corner of the park. I went out on the street on the east side of the square and I looked and saw they were going down Vermont avenue. I hung around the park about half an hour or so, and they did not return and it was very warm, and I concluded to let the matter drop for that night, so that, after sitting in the park for some time, I went as usual to my home and went to bed. I went to the Riggs House and took a room in the afternoon of Thursday, and the event mentioned in this preceding talk happened, I am quite certain, on Thursday night; it was either on Wednesday or Thursday. I am not positive which, but my impression is that it happened on Thursday night. On Friday night after I got my dinner at the Riggs House I went up to my room and I took out my revolver and I put it in my hip pocket and I had my papers with me, and I thought I possibly might get a chance at him Friday night. I went into Lafayette square and sat there, opposite the White House.

IN THE SHADOW OF DEATH.

"I had not been there a minute before I saw the President walk out of the White House. 'Now,' I thought to myself, 'I have got a splendid chance at him; he is all alone; there isn't any one around him.' He walked along the east side of the square and down H street. I followed him. He went to Mr. Blaine's house, on Fifteenth street. He walked along and when he got on the sidewalk opposite Mr. Blaine's house he looked up as if he did not know the place exactly, and then he saw the correct number and walked in. I followed him along and I was about half-way between H street and Mr. Blaine's house, on the opposite side of the street, when he entered the house. I went into the alley in the rear of Mr. Morton's house and got out my revolver and looked at it and wiped it off and put it back into my pocket. I went over to the H street stoop, at Wormley's, and I waited there half an hour, I should say, for the President to come out. He came out and Mr. Blaine with him and I waited at Wormley's until they passed by me on the opposite side. They walked down H street and on the east side of Lafayette square and through the gate nearest the Treasury Building and into the White House. Mr. Blaine and the President seemed to be talking with the greatest earnestness. Mr. Blaine was on the left side of the President as they walked along the street. Blaine's right arm was looped in the President's left arm and they were engaged in the most earnest conversation; their heads were very close together. Blaine was striking the air every few minutes and the President was drinking it all in; and occasionally the President would strike out his hand, thereby giving assent to what Mr. Blaine was saying. They seemed to be in a very hilarious state of mind and delightful fellowship and in perfect accord. This scene made a striking impression on me; it confirmed what I had read in the papers and what I had felt for a long time—to wit, that the President was entirely under Mr. Blaine's influence and that they were in perfect accord. I may have remained in the park perhaps half or three-quarters of an hour, and then I went down to my room at the Riggs House. I took a towel bath in my room and went to bed and went to sleep. I woke up about four o'clock Saturday morning and felt well in mind and body. My mind was perfectly clear in regard to removing the President; I had not the slightest doubt about my duty to the Lord and to the American people in trying to remove the President; and I want to say here as emphatically as words can make it, that, from the moment when I fully decided to remove the President, I have never had the slightest shadow on my mind; my purpose has been just as clear and just as determined as anything could be. I believed that I was acting under a special Divine authority to remove him, and this Divine pressure was upon me from the time when I fully resolved to remove him until I actually shot him. It was only by nerving myself to the utmost that I did it at all, and I never had the slightest doubt as to the Divine inspiration of the act, and that it was for the best interest of the American people.

NEARING THE END.

"Having heard on Friday from the papers, and also by my inquiries of the doorkeeper at the White House, Friday evening, that the President was going to Long Branch Saturday morning, I resolved to remove him at the depot. I took my breakfast at the Riggs House about eight o'clock. I ate well and felt well in body and mind. I went into Lafayette square and sat there some little time after breakfast, waiting for nine o'clock to come, and then I went to the depot and I got there about ten minutes after nine. I rode there from the park in a 'bob tailed' car. I left the car, walked up to a bootblack, got my boots blacked, and inquired for a man named John Taylor, whom, two weeks before, I had spoken to about taking me out toward the Congressional Cemetery.

"They told me that Taylor's carriage was not there, and there were three or four hackmen there who were very anxious to serve me, and finally I noticed a colored man, and I said to him, 'What will you take me out to the Congressional Cemetery for?' He says, 'Well, I will take you out there for $2.' 'All right,' said I, 'if I want to use you I will let you know.' At that moment these other hackmen were pressing me to get my business, and I said to them, 'Keep quiet; you are too fast on this,' and I told this colored man privately that if I wanted his services I would let him know in a few minutes. I then went into the depot and took my private papers which I intended for the press (including a revised edition of my book, 'The Truth, a Companion to the Bible'), and stepped up to the news stand and asked the young man in charge if I could leave those papers with him a few moments, and he said, 'Certainly;' and he took them and placed them up against the wall on top of some other papers. This was about twenty minutes after nine, and I went into the ladies' waiting room and I looked around, saw there were quite a good many people there in the depot and carriages outside, but I did not see the President's carriage.

"I examined my revolver to see that it was all right, and took off the paper that I had wrapped around it to keep the moisture off. I waited five or six minutes longer, sat down on a seat in the ladies' room, and very soon the President drove up. He was in company with a gentleman who, I understand, was Mr. Blaine, and I am satisfied that he was Mr. Blaine, although, I did not recognize him. This gentleman looked very old, and he had a peculiar kind of headgear on that I did not recognize as that of Mr. Blaine's. I am satisfied that it was Mr. Blaine, now that my attention has been specially called to it, because it was the same gentleman that I saw with the President the night before, and I know positively that that gentleman was Mr. Blaine. The President and this gentleman drove up in a plain single-seated carriage with one horse; this gentleman, I think, was driving. It was a single carriage—a single seated top buggy. The President seemed to be in very earnest and private conversation with this gentleman, who evidently was Mr. Blaine, although at the time I did not recognize him as Mr. Blaine. They sat in the carriage, I should say some two minutes; they had not completed their conversation when they reached the depot, and during the interview of two minutes they finished their conversation.

"During this time they were engaged in very earnest and private conversation, as I have said. The President got out on the pavement side and Mr. Blaine on the other side. They entered the ladies' room; I stood there watching the President and they passed by me. Before they reached the depot I had been promenading up and down the ladies' room between the ticket office door and the news-stand door, a space of some ten or twelve feet. I walked up and down there I should say two or three times, working myself up, as I knew the hour was at hand. The President and Mr. Blaine came into the ladies' room and walked right by me; they did not notice me as there were quite a number of ladies and children in the room.

HOW THE PRESIDENT FELL.

"There was quite a large crowd of ticket purchasers at the gentlemen's ticket office in the adjoining room; the depot seemed to be quite full of people. There was quite a crowd and commotion around, and the President was in the act of passing from the ladies' room to the main entrance through the door. I should say he was four or five feet from the door nearest the ticket office. In the act of passing through the door to get through the depot to the cars. He was about three or four feet from the door. I stood five or six feet behind him, right in the middle of the room, and as he was in the act of walking away from me I pulled out the revolver and fired. He straightened up and threw his head back and seemed to be perfectly bewildered. He did not seem to know what struck him. I looked at him; he did not drop; I thereupon pulled again. He dropped his head, seemed to reel, and fell over. I do not know where the first shot hit; I aimed at the hollow of his back; I did not aim for any particular place, but I knew if I got those two bullets in his back he would certainly go. I was in a diagonal direction from the President, to the northwest, and supposed both shots struck.

THE ARREST.

"I was in the act of putting my revolver back into my pocket when the depot policeman seized me and said, 'You shot the President of the United States.' He was terribly excited; he hardly knew his head from his feet, and I said, 'Keep quiet, my friend; keep quiet, my friend. I want to go to jail.' A moment after the policeman seized me by the left arm; clinched me with terrible force. Another gentleman—an older man I should say, and less robust—seized me by the right arm. At this moment the ticket agent and a great crowd of people rushed around me, and the ticket agent said, 'That's him;' and he pushed out his arm to seize me around the neck, and I says, 'Keep quiet, my friends; I want to go to jail;' and the officers, one on each side of me, rushed me off to the Police Headquarters, and the officer who first seized me by the hand says, 'This man has just shot the President of the United States,' and he was terribly excited. And I said, 'Keep quiet, my friend, keep quiet; I have got some papers that will explain the whole matter.'

"They let go of me and they held my hands up—one policeman on one side and one on the other—and they went through me and took away my revolver and what little change I had, my comb and my toothpick, all my papers, and I gave them my letters to the White House; told them that I wished they would send that letter to the White House at once and the officer began to read my letter to the White House, and in this envelope containing my letter to the White House was my speech, 'Garfield' against Hancock.' He glanced his eye over the letter and I was telling him about sending it at once to the White House to explain the matter and he said, 'We will put you into the White House.' So I said nothing after that. They took me around a little dark place and put me into a cell; they locked the door and went off, and I did not see any one for ten minutes, and then one or two parties came and took a look at me; they were policemen and detectives and said, 'I don't know him; I don't know that man; never saw him before.'

"I waited a few moments longer and a gentleman came—a detective, who proved to be Mr. McElfresh—and he was very polite and attentive. I told him in brief who I was and why I did it; that I had some papers at the newsstand; that I wished him to get those papers and take them up to Byron Andrews and his cojournalists; that the papers would explain all about the matter. I also told him that I wished to go to jail at once, and he came in and put the handcuffs on to me. There were five or six policemen and detectives with him when he came in to see me, and he went away and came back in a few minutes and said that they had decided to take me right to jail, and I said, 'That is just what I want.' And he and his brother officers took me right out into the room and down the stairs and into a carriage, and he and three other policemen got in and drove me rapidly to the jail. I met Mr. Russ, the deputy warden. McElfresh told him that I had shot the President of the United States, and he assigned me to cell No. 2, and I have been there ever since, except when I have been to the Warden's room to be interviewed by a correspondent of the New York Herald."

TOO SMALL AN ESCORT FOR A LARGE GOVERNOR.

The Portland Press informs its readers that one of its reporters enjoyed the felicity of "a long conversation" with Governor Plaisted in that city in regard to the Yorktown celebration. His Excellency said he "should have liked to see Maine handsomely represented on that occasion," and he indicated that his notion of a handsome representation of the State would be the attendance of His Excellency, with "a battalion of militia as escort and General Chamberlain and staff as well as his [the Governor's] own staff to participate in the celebration." Who shall say that wouldn't be a "handsome" sort of thing?

If Maine were to send a battalion of militia to Yorktown, the State certainly ought not to grudge the expense of sending a sufficient corps of officers to handle such a body of troops, and the Governor seems to have had this thought when he suggested that a fair proportion of officers would be: Himself, Commander-in-Chief, with his Staff, consisting of two Brigadier Generals, three Colonels, and five Lieutenant-Colonels; with Major-General Chamberlain and his Staff, consisting of two Lieutenant-Colonels, four Majors and a Captain.

The Governor seemed to think the $600 furnished him by the Council was rather small potatoes, and said he had been forced to write his staff that he could only furnish them transportation and those who went would have to "pay for incidentals" out of their own funds. He alluded to the refusal of the Legislature to "make any appropriation for the expenses of such a body," but said "there was $4000 unexpended "from the militia appropriations, and $3000 "of the contingent fund of the Governor "and Council, and this $7000 would have "given Maine a proper and creditable appearance."

His Excellency evidently thinks the present Council should have emulated the example of the Garcelon Council in grabbing all the unexpended appropriations that might be lying around the Treasury and use them regardless of the purposes for which the funds were authorized. And it will also be noted that after the people's representatives had voted it inexpedient to provide for any expenditure for a delegation to this celebration, our "Economy and Reform" Governor, who went up and down the State last year lamenting Republican extravagance and asking the honest farmers to put him in the State House to restore the severe simplicity of "the Fathers," now thinks it rather stingy in a Republican Council that they do not give him seven thousand dollars out of the public funds without authority, to furnish him an "escort" and enable him to make a "creditable appearance" in the line of fuss and feathers.

There are those who think that the Governor who is so anxious to spend public money for his own glorification, would do much more toward giving "Maine a proper and creditable appearance" in the eyes of the people, by signing the warrants that have been lying upon his table for months covering the faithfully-earned salaries of State officers who are deprived of their dues by his partisan spite.

THE OHIO ELECTION.

[From the New York Tribune.]

Ohio votes next Tuesday, 11th inst., for Governor and other State officers and for members of her Legislature. The campaign has been an exceedingly quiet one. The perilous condition of President Garfield absorbed the thought and sympathy of the public at the time when the work of preparation for an election is ordinarily carried on; and his death, occurring at a date when campaign effort usually assumes its most active phase, threw such a gloom upon the State that there was no disposition to enter upon the customary labors of enrollment and public meetings. Thus the people approach the election with scarcely a reminder save in the articles in the newspapers that they are at the close of a really important canvass. A few meetings have been held in the cities this week, but neither party has attempted to reach the masses of the voters by the methods of platform oratory and document distribution, which are generally thought indispensable.

Encouraged by the usual quiet of the canvass, the Democrats are claiming a victory in advance, on the ground that a light vote always inures to their advantage, because, in the falling off from a full vote, their percentage of loss is considerably less than that of the Republicans. They appear to have no other cause for their anticipations of success, unless we reckon the force of habit which prompts them to "claim everything," no matter what the prospects may be. Theirs is a famous party for hallooing before it is out of the woods.

We estimate the Republican chances of carrying Ohio as fully as good as they were when Foster was elected two years ago. Then the Democrats ran against him an eloquent and popular orator who prosecuted an exceedingly strong stumping canvass and made the most of the hard times and soft money delusions still lingering in the public mind. Now, the Democratic candidate is, as far as personal and political influence is concerned, a nobody. General Ewing was a great favorite with the Ohio Democracy, and wherever he went universal gatherings greeted him. Mr. Bookwalter had not been heard of by one Democrat in fifty in the State before his money secured him the nomination, and he is obliged to thrust himself upon public notice by going to county fairs where crowds are assembled to see horse-races and prize cattle. By a large expenditure of cash he may have secured a better organization than the Republicans have formed, but he cannot possibly infuse any interest in his own personality in the minds of the Democratic masses. They would like to see their party win, but they don't care a copper for Bookwalter.

On the other hand, the Republicans have the advantage of the popularity of Charles Foster, which proved an important element of strength in the canvass of 1879. He has made a safe, intelligent and conscientious Governor, and well deserves a second term. Even the partisan zeal of his opponents can allege nothing against his official course or his private character. The Prohibition movement, which seemed somewhat formidable last spring, and has until lately been the chief reliance of the Democrats for success, has steadily dwindled away. The insincerity of its candidate for Governor, whose business is the manufacture of presses for making the beverage he condemns, has thrown ridicule upon the movement, and together with the evident fact that it is sustained with money drawn from the Democratic campaign fund, has brought it into general contempt. It can do very little mischief now. If it musters 10,000 votes in a poll of 600,000 it will exceed our expectations.

The conservative course of President Arthur is a great aid to the Ohio Republicans, and will be worth many thousands of votes to their ticket. Their apprehension that the murder of President Garfield would bring about a sacrifice of his policy and his friends, and give place and power to the few men who were conspicuous for their factional hostility to him, has been allayed. They hope that his successor will prove the chief of the entire party and will labor to cultivate harmony in its ranks. In this new hope they feel fresh courage and a strong desire to keep their State steadily in its old place at the head of the Republican column. They feel that a Republican majority in Garfield's State will be a fitting tribute to his memory, and an evidence that the party he loved is still thought worthy of the efforts of all who were his comrades in the political contests of the past twenty-five years. With this spirit of reverence for their dead leader, and hope for the future of the party and the country, the Ohio Republicans can hardly fail to win a victory on Tuesday next.

THE ELECTIONS TO-MORROW.

Ohio will to-morrow elect a Governor, Lieut-Governor, Judge of Supreme Court, Attorney General, Treasurer and Member Board of Public Works. Iowa will elect Governor, Lieut-Governor, Judge of Supreme Court and Superintendent of Public Institution.

In Ohio in 1880 the vote for Secretary of State was: Republican, 362,021; Democratic, 343,016; Greenback, 6,786; Prohibition 2,815.

In Iowa in 1880 the vote for Secretary of State was: Republican, 184,166; Democratic, 105,760; Greenback, 32,780.

BLAINE'S LETTER TO GARFIELD.

The letter written by Hon. James G. Blaine to the late President Garfield, accepting the position of Secretary of State, is one of the manliest letters ever written.—Boston Journal.

That was a noble letter, in which Mr. Blaine accepted Gen. Garfield's invitation to go into his Cabinet—just such a letter as one who knows Mr. Blaine would expect him to write.—Providence Press.

Mr. Blaine's letter to General Garfield, accepting the tender of the State Department, is a very frank and manly epistle. It is one which President Garfield must have been proud to receive, and that Mr. Blaine may be glad to have written.—Boston Herald.

Mr. Blaine's letter written to General Garfield last year accepting the position of Secretary of State is printed to-day. It will make a bright spot in political history, exhibiting as it does, the ideal friendship which existed for eighteen years between two leaders in American politics and was never marred even by a misunderstanding, though they were brought into close contact and were moved with the same ambitions.—New York Tribune.

The characteristic letter from James G. Blaine, containing the acceptance of General Garfield's offer of a place in the Cabinet, comes directly from the warm heart of its author. We do not believe that any other political leader in the country could have indited just such a missive, so entirely denuded of reserve, and so absolute in self-surrender, and without the least affectation of sincerity, as the tone and current of expression testify to the entire honesty pervading the production. The letter is conclusive evidence of the possibility of the most cordial friendships, personal and political, existing between men prominent in public affairs.—Boston Transcript.

The Patterson, N. J., Press calls attention to the fact that a large proportion of the board signs along country roads advertise men who long ago failed in business. The same amount of expenditure invested in legitimate newspaper advertising would in many cases have built up successful trade.

Henry Watterson says that Collector Robertson, according to Conklingite rules, cannot be removed without the consent of Senators Miller and Lapham.

The N. Y. Herald announced the arrivals of Secretaries Blaine, Windom, Lincoln and Hunt at the Fifth Avenue Hotel Friday evening. They expected to go to Washington Saturday. They met in pursuance of an understanding made a week ago, when they went into the country for rest and quiet. When they separated at that time it was agreed that they should go to Washington together, and be there in season for the special session of the Senate.

Senator Ben H. Hill, of Georgia, who has had two operations for cancerous affection of the tongue, a few days ago wrote as follows to a friend in Atlanta: "I have had a terrible ordeal of suffering, but I am now free from pain, and there seems to be a fair prospect of a permanent recovery. My general health is perfect, and the doctors say my trouble is entirely local, and that there is no impurity in my blood."

A sensation has been created at the Navy Department by the reception of a report from the Board of Inspection severely condemning the U. S. Frigate Lancaster, which has been under repair construction at Portsmouth Navy Yard for four years, and has recently been detailed as Flag Ship of the European Squadron. The report practically says that the ship is unseaworthy, that the armament is too heavy, that the guns are so arranged that the ship cannot be well worked, that in fact one cannot walk the deck except in a zigzag manner, and that the engines are defective.

Terrible Accident

Necessitating a Surgical Operation—Loving Mother Attempts to Take Pair of Shears from her Child.

PARENTS BE CAREFUL.

Domestic accidents are common to women, and some of them are very serious. Mrs. Warner, of South Rondout, Ulster Co., N. Y., some weeks ago attempted to take from her child a pair of shears with which it was playing. A slight struggle ensued, in which the point of the shears entered Mrs. Warner's left eye, entirely destroying the sight. Her family physician did what he could but intensely painful inflammation arose, which, by sympathy, threatened the loss of the other eye. Total blindness to a woman having the care of a household is an irretrievable calamity. In this strait Mrs. W— applied to the well known and skillful Surgeon, Dr. David Kennedy, of Rondout, N.Y., who removed the injured eye by a very successful operation, setting aside all danger of further harm to the sight of the other eye. But owing to pain and mental distress, her system needed a tonic and restorative medicine. To do this work the Doctor prescribed "Kennedy's Favorite Remedy," which sustained its reputation and laid a sure foundation of health.

Dr. Kennedy's "Favorite Remedy," removes all impurities from the blood, regulates the Liver and Kidneys, Cures Constipation, and all diseases and weaknesses peculiar to Females. It is for sale by all our druggists at ONE DOLLAR a bottle.

MAINE NEWS.

THE CAIN MURDER TRIAL.

ROCKLAND, Oct 8 Ralph B Rickard, the elder of the two boys arrested for the murder of Willie Cain was examined to-day at great length, the court room being crowded to hear the story of the young prisoner. He reiterated his former testimony, in which he claimed that he was threatened into confessing the crime because of the threats made to tar and feather him and drag him across the pond with a rope attached to his neck. A searching cross examination failed to impeach the prisoner's testimony. The other witnesses who were called to the stand threw no new light upon the manner in which the boy lost his life.

Court Adjourned

FARMINGTON Oct 8 The S J Court adjourned to-day. Nine cases were tried. [illegible] for the theft of a team was sent [illegible] for two years and six months.

WASHINGTON.

Extra Session of the Senate.

WASHINGTON Oct 8 The Republican and Democratic senatorial caucuses met at the Capitol at about eleven o'clock this forenoon. There was quite a full attendance at both of them, not more than five Democrats and four Republicans being absent. The new Senators Lapham, Miller and Aldrich were present at the Republican caucus.

After remaining in session an hour or more discussing the situation the Republicans appointed a committee to confer with the Democrats on the general subject of organization.

The caucuses then took a recess for an hour. But little disposition is shown in the Republican caucus to offer any unreasonable opposition to the election of a Democratic President pro tem before the new Senators are sworn in. The drift of the discussion pointed to a respectful and firm protest against such action on the part of the Democrats and not to filibustering to prevent it.

The Democrats still remain in session. They have decided to proceed with the election of a President pro tem as the first business Monday next. Bayard was unanimously determined upon as their candidate.

The Democratic caucus appointed a committee consisting of Messrs Pendleton, Voorhees, Pugh and Davis, of West Virginia, to meet a Republican committee and confer with them in relation to organization.

Messrs Edmunds, Logan, Allison, Sherman and McMillan compose the Republican committee. The Democratic caucus after appointing the conference committee took a recess.

The conference between the Republican and Democratic committees has failed. The Democratic committee stated that they had no authority to enter into the consideration of the question of election of a President of the Senate, that their caucus insisted on the right of the Democrats to elect that officer. The Republicans then proposed to confer in relation to the entire organization of the Senate. The Democrats declined to consider the Presidency of the Senate as a question at issue and the Republicans then refused to hold a conference. The committees then separated and returned to their respective caucuses to report the failure.

The Republicans without further discussion adjourned soon after the return of their Conference Committee. After adjournment the Chairman, Senator Anthony, prepared the following statement as the authorized version of the efforts to agree upon a plan of organization.

It having been understood that several Democratic Senators had manifested a willingness to confer with the Republicans upon the situation, the latter at a caucus to-day appointed a committee of five—Messrs Edmunds, Sherman, Allison, McMillan and Logan to confer with a similar committee of the Democrats upon the organization of the Senate. This was communicated to the Democratic caucus whereupon the latter appointed Messrs Pendleton, Pugh, Garland, Davis of W. Virginia, and Voorhees.

The committees met and the Republicans were informed that before receiving notice of the desire for a conference the Democrats had upon deliberation determined that under the existing circumstances the Democrats would elect a President pro tem of the Senate and the Democratic committee was not authorized to confer with the Republicans on the subject. This subject being the most important of the points upon which the conference was desired the Republican conferees withdrew and upon their report of the facts the Republican caucus adjourned to meet at 10 A M Monday.

The Guiteau Indictment

The Guiteau indictment embraces eleven counts and is drawn with great minuteness. The fifth and sixth counts are the ones upon which it is said the prosecution will mainly rely. They describe the shooting as having been done at the Baltimore & Potomac Depot Washington with malice aforethought with a pistol of the value of five dollars, inflicting a mortal wound of the depth of six inches and breadth of one inch, of which said mortal wound said James A Garfield, until the 19th day of September as well at, and in the county of Washington and District of Columbia, as at and in the county of Monmouth State New Jersey, did languish and languishing did live and ultimately did die.

The next count formally repeats the charge that Guiteau in the manner and by the means described, feloniously, willfully and of his own malice aforethought did kill and murder, against the form of the statute in such case made and provided and against the peace and government of the United States.

The Indictment Presented

At 12:15 the Grand Jury entered the Criminal Court and presented the indictment against Guiteau endorsed a true bill, and signed by Caleb Churchman, foreman.

His Counsel

Geo Scoville Guiteau's counsel and brother in law who recently returned from New York, said to a reporter to-day that he did not make any arrangement in that city for counsel to assist him in conducting Guiteau's defence. It is his intention to ask Richard I. Merrick a prominent lawyer in this city, to act with him as associate counsel, and if the latter declines, he will ask the court to assign either Mr Merrick, or some other competent attorney to assist him. Scoville thinks Guiteau will be arraigned Tuesday morning next, and says that if he conducts the case alone he will put Guiteau on the stand in his own defence as his first witness.

Cabinet Matters.

The statement that the Secretaryship of the Treasury has been tendered to Geo S Boutwell is not thought by those in the position to know to be altogether correct. It is not probable that the President has invited him to accept a Cabinet position. The friends of Mr Boutwell say if he is selected he will accept; and discredit the story that he declined to serve.

Ashore 20 Miles from Quebec

QUEBEC, Oct. 9 The Allan Steamship Corean, which left here yesterday, for Glasgow, went ashore at Port Valier, about 20 miles below here, last night, during thick weather. Assistance has been sent.

THE INDIANS.

Capt. Hentzig's Murderer Arrested

TUCSON, ARIZONA, Oct. 8 A special from San Carlos yesterday, says This morning Col. Tiffany arrested Ashay, who, the friendly Indians say, is the murderer of Capt. Hentzig. At his examination he acknowledged being in the Cibicu fight and firing two of the first shots. He also said that he was of the party which killed Turner and Moody at Middleton's ranche, but says he did not go to the ranche. Last night the agency scouts broke up Tiswin's gang five miles north of here and brought in the chief and two other Indians. More arrests will be made to-day.

Other Attacks.

SANTE FE Oct 9 An El Paso special says Passengers via the Southern Pacific Railway report that Thursday night when the train was passing Wilcox, Arizona, a fight was in progress between the citizens and Indians. The Indians seemed to have made an attack on the whites who were thrown into great confusion and were retreating. A firing of guns which was fierce and constant drowned the noise of the train and was heard for a number of miles. The bodies of five line repairers were seen near the track, shot through the head. This is the second party of telegraph men murdered in the last few days. Nothing has been received confirmatory of the above at district headquarters.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct 9 A despatch from Fort Wilcox, Arizona, the 8th inst says A courier, who arrived at Bowie reports that Arnold's command was attacked by Indians between Bodocolerie Rancho and Huachucas Mountains. The Indians abandoned all the animals and took to the mountains. Two Indians were found dead and the rest have gone to the South end of Huachucas Mountains.

WILLCOX Oct 9 Norton and Stewart telegraph from Grant that the wire between there and Thomas went down at half past six and they will not send out a stage to-night. Jones, who came from Thomas this morning, says Lt Willcox with an escort of ten men had orders to be at Grant this evening and had not arrived. Signal fires have been seen on the mountains and across the valley. A large force will be sent out from Grant to find the cause of the wire being down. It is thought it had been broken by the Indians but there is nothing authentic. All kinds of rumors are afloat here.

WILLCOX, A T, Oct 9 There are three columns in the field against the hostiles the objective point of meeting being at the Mexican line, which they will all cross if the Mexican authorities permit and co-operate with their troops. Everything reported quiet at the reservation.

GLADSTONE'S SPEECH.

How it was Received.

NEW YORK, Oct 9 London specials of to-day give extracts from Gladstone's speech at Leeds Friday. One says His chief point was a declaration that if the law, purged from defect and the stain of injustice is still refused and the first consideration of political society is unfulfilled, 'Then I say the resources of civilization are not exhausted.' This threat has put the Irish papers into a fury.

DUBLIN Oct 9 The Freeman denounces Gladstone's recklessness and his desperate attempt to break up the National party. It asks does Gladstone wish to drive the people into the land court? His demonstrations it says render them doubly suspicious of the act. It tells him also he is self condemned which he acknowledges that the government has no support in Ireland.

The Irish Times blames him for speaking of the sluggishness of the wealthier classes who after all have been deserted in the crisis by the government. Had the government, it says, shown months ago a stronger purpose to do what was right, a powerful moral force would have been generated in its behalf.

CALIFORNIA.

Imprisoned in a Mine

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct 8 Further particulars from upper Lake of the disaster at the Sulphur Bank Quicksilver Mine state that two Chinamen heard the crackling of the timbers and managed to come up although seriously injured. The four white men shut in are Englishmen. It is believed to be impossible to reach them before they are suffocated by the gas.

House Burned—A Narrow Escape

HOPKINTON, Oct 9 A large two and a half story house, between Hopkinton and Ashland, was burned this morning together with the barn, shed etc. It was occupied by E McIntyre, colored, with his wife and three children who narrowly escaped with their lives. Loss $4000. Insurance $2500.

THE NEW YORK CONVENTION.

The Result Gives Satisfaction Abroad

NEW YORK, Oct 9 A London special says Comments here on the New York Republican Convention show satisfaction that the majority uphold Garfield's ideas. The late President's illness and death have given stimulus to public interest in American questions, which shows itself stronger than ever in favor of President Garfield's platform, especially as regards Civil Service Reform.

Officers Dividing Booty With the Train Robbers

LITTLE ROCK Oct 9 The pursuing party, which captured Stephens and Delaney, the Iron Mountain train robbers, who were sentenced yesterday, consisted of four men named Huddlestone, Belvines, Moore and Ballabodo. When arrested the robbers had about $9000. Huddlestone proposed to the captors to divide the money among themselves, which was agreed to, the money being equally divided among the four officers in the presence of Stephens and Delaney. In consideration of the latter keeping the matter a secret each of the four swore they would annually pay to the families of the train robbers a hundred dollars, and leave no means untried to secure their release from the penitentiary after conviction.

They did not release them at once because a reward awaited their delivery at Hope. On the route Belvines manifested dissatisfaction at the transaction as he thought the money ought to be returned to the Railroad Company. The party reached Hope Corner, turned over their prisoners to the authorities, and came to this city to receive the $1000 reward offered by the State.

At the trial yesterday Belvines divulged the matter to Superintendent Buchanan, of the Iron Mountain Road. Huddlestone, Moore and Ballabodo, were examined separately and each made an affidavit that he knew nothing of the whereabouts of any money. Subsequently Moore approached Buchanan and stated that the money would be procured.

Thos. McKeever, whose wife left him eight years ago on account of his dissolute habits, met her to-night in a butcher shop and plunged a knife into her abdomen inflicting a fatal wound.

FOREIGN NEWS.

The Interview of Emperors

WARSAW, Oct. 8 Active preparations are making here for the coming interview between the Emperor of Austria and the Czar. A great sensation was caused in Hungary by the news of the perfected interview.

The secret has oozed out that this meeting is connected with the violent suppression of the eastern question by the arbitrary annexation of European Turkey to Austria and Russia, with the promise of neutrality to Germany in the event of war next spring with France.

A VETERAN FARMER. Rufus West, of Frankfort, now in his 92d year, has lived 70 years within six rods of where he was born, never absent from his home over 15 days at any one time, never chewed any tobacco, nor smoked a pipe or cigar, nor played a game of cards. Has taken the Belfast Journal fifty years and paid for it. He has built three miles of stone wall on his farm, clearing the land so that he now does his mowing by a machine. The pleasant thing left to be said is that Mr West would be taken on the street for not over 70 years of age, and has something handsome to show for his life of prudence and labor.

THE OPERA HOUSE. The trusses which are to support the roof of the new opera house were hauled to the premises Saturday and the work of getting them into the building was witnessed by large crowds. These trusses are massive affairs, being strengthened with iron bolts and clamps and are capable of supporting a tremendous weight. A force of riggers will be employed to hoist them into position. The structure is progressing satisfactorily and the same attention to strength and solidity that was given to the foundation is apparent in the details of the building as the work advances.

THE BANGOR HOUSE. Under the careful management of Mr Thomas Lynch the excellent headwaiter, the dining room at the Bangor House is now one of the best regulated in the State. When he assumed charge of the room the waiters were all carefully examined and only the most competent retained, the vacancies being filled by new and experienced waiters and the corps now employed are very attentive and polite. The meals are served promptly and the travelling public and the regular guests appreciate this new order of things as well as the other arrangements constantly being made by Landlord Beal for the comfort of his patrons.

A FINE LAUNCH SATURDAY. The new and beautiful three masted schooner James A Garfield was launched from Oakes & Son's shipyard in Brewer at eleven o'clock Saturday forenoon. This vessel was built for Capt James Woodbury and was to have been called the Grace Woodbury but it has been decided to give her the name of the martyred President. She is of 758 tons carpenter's measurement cost between $30 000 and $35 000 and is principally owned by the Woodburys and Holyokes in Brewer. She is finished throughout in a superior manner, her main cabin being finished in walnut cherry and ash, is supplied with state rooms a bath room having a set tub and other modern conveniences. She was built by Oakes & Son under the supervision of the master ship carpenter Mr L. L. Hopkins. The launch was an unusually fine one and was witnessed by a great many people. She was saluted by the whistles of the steam mills and by the steamer Katahdin. She laid yesterday at the Marine railway pier.

IMPROVEMENTS ON BROAD STREET. Within a few months the lower portion of Broad street has undergone a great change for the better. The long neglected sidewalks have been repaired neat and substantial coal sheds have been erected by Bacon Robinson & Co. the dangerous and unsightly pile known as the Farrar Building has given place to the large and substantial storehouse of Messrs Morse & Thaxter, the adjoining building 100 feet in length owned by Mr N C Ayer, has been raised and generally overhauled and the smaller building, also owned by the latter gentleman, is being remodelled and generally repaired and various other improvements are in progress. On Front street, which is but a continuation of Broad street several noteworthy improvements have been made, among which may be mentioned the fine storehouse built by Messrs Hincks & Co. This firm has also constructed a new coal shed adjoining their office on that street and made several other improvements about their premises. We are glad to note these evidences of enterprise and prosperity.

A PROFITABLE MEETING. The temperance meeting in City Hall yesterday, held by the Reform Club, was attended by a good sized audience and was rewarded with a good list of signatures to the pledge among the number being some of our first citizens. President Page presided and called upon Mrs Pickard to read the Scripture lesson—that lady selecting the 2d Psalm—and the Rev Mr Palmer to offer prayer. The audience were then interested in brief remarks by the chairman and James Jowitt of the club O H Hinckley, of Hampden, and O H Ingalls, Esq of this city. Mr Ingalls' remarks were full of good points and commanded close attention. Mr J. Russell, of Oakland, Cal, followed in a speech, replete with encouragement and sound counsel to reform workers. Mr J F Montgomery was the last speaker, and his true earnestness and the happy change the work has wrought in him, caused his remarks, as usual, to be rewarded by frequent demonstrations of approval from his hearers. The meeting was also favored by Mrs Hammond's fine singing, especially in the solo of "The Drunkard's Child."

A VICTIM OF PRACTICAL JOKES. A man in a garb all "tattered and torn," and driving a wretched looking animal attached to a still more wretched vehicle, came into this city from the precincts of Glenburn, on Saturday. Leaving his horse hitched at the Park fence he visited several saloons and when he finally returned for his team his steps were unsteady. Being still thirsty, he drove down Exchange street, letting his team stand in the street while he went into a saloon for one more drink. In the meantime a crowd of boys had collected about the team, no doubt attracted by its antique appearance, and like bad boys in general proceeded to play practical jokes. Securing a rope they hitched one of the rear wheels to a telegraph pole, they next fastened both reins to one end of the bit, and then awaited developments. Soon the poor man, in a maudlin condition, came out of the saloon and after some difficulty succeeded in getting into the wagon. Giving the horse a cut with the whip he only succeeded in getting the length of the rope, when the rim parted company with the wheel. Tying up the broken wheel, he made another attempt, but to his surprise the more he pulled to the right the more his horse turned to the left. Being too stupid to ascertain the cause, he finally started on foot, leading the animal by the bridle, in the direction of Glenburn.

Mrs. L Dwelly announces that having returned from New York, she is now prepared to show her fall and winter millinery.

ACCIDENT. A man belonging in the Provinces, whose name we could not learn, was in the ferry house on the Brewer side, late Saturday night, and while in the act of cutting up tobacco with which to fill his pipe, his knife slipped, severing an artery in the wrist. The unfortunate man sustained a great loss of blood before a surgeon arrived to dress the wound.

A statement of the Holyoke Mutual Fire Insurance Company of Salem Mass appears in our advertising columns. According to this statement dividends are now being paid in cash on all expiring policies as follows: Fifty per cent on four year policies, thirty per cent on three year policies and twenty per cent on yearly policies. S P Johnson, Esq., of this city is agent for the above company.

WEEK DAY RELIGIOUS SERVICES. We are informed that the special religious services in the First Methodist church, will continue during this week. More than forty persons during the past two weeks, have signified their desire to enter upon a new life. The congregations yesterday morning and evening were large, and the services very interesting. The meetings on Monday and Tuesday evenings will be in the audience room of the church, and Mr Johnson will preach.

A DISGRACEFUL AFFAIR. At the close of the dance at City Hall Saturday night about ten minutes before twelve o'clock a row occurred on Columbia street between some dozen or fifteen of the participants of the dance. It appeared to be a regular drunken melee. The combatants gave vent to the most foul mouthed language and fearful oaths, and the women shrieked at the top of their voices crying 'murder' etc. Officers Walker and Mayville appeared upon the scene and amid the hurling of beastly epithets and threats of defiance and vengeance took a young man who appeared to be the ring leader, to the police station. We had occasion recently to speak of these Saturday night dances at City Hall, out of which grew the row in which Officer Weymouth was assaulted. The affair last night was a most disgraceful one and gives rise to the query is it not about time that such exhibitions received a check.

AMUSEMENTS.

The Gerster Concert.

The subscription list for the coming concert by Madame Gerster and company will open at Baldwin's to-morrow morning and it should be borne in mind that seats may be selected at the same time. This promises to be a musical event long to be remembered and we hope the subscription to-morrow will be such as to insure its success.

Official Visit to the Passamaquoddy Indians

In the Whig of last Wednesday we spoke of the official visit made by the Governor and members of the Executive Council last Tuesday to the Indians at Oldtown. Wednesday morning they left this city for the purpose of making a visit to the Passamaquoddy tribe, going to Calais direct on that day. Thursday morning the party proceeded by rail to Princeton and from there by steamer to Dana's Point a small reservation where a few Indian families are located, the tribe being divided. After visiting the school at this Point and noting the general condition of the Indians they returned to Calais, where they spent the night. Friday morning the party proceeded on a chartered tug to Pleasant Point a reservation about seven miles from Eastport, on which there is quite a settlement. The Councillors state that in point of civilization the Passamaquoddy Indians are decidedly below those of the Penobscot tribe. They give no attention to agriculture and subsist principally by fishing and working in the woods. They do not speak the English language nearly so well as do the Indians at Oldtown, many of them in fact speaking nothing but their own uncultivated idiom. The Councillors next paid a visit to Eastport returning to Calais that evening. Saturday morning they left Calais arriving in this city the same evening. After taking tea the members of the Council with the exception of Councillors Bowers and Pendleton who remained in this city over Sunday took the western train for their homes. They expressed themselves as much pleased with their visit.

Trying Experience of the Crew of the Royal Oak

We learn from Portland papers that on Friday morning the schooner O. Robinson sighted the Royal Oak of Bangor forty miles off Cape Elizabeth water logged and took off the crew and brought them to Portland.

The Royal Oak was 80 tons burden and a new vessel, owned by the captain, David Dawes of Tremont, and was all the property he possessed. She was lumber laden, bound from Bangor to Boston and had a crew of three men. The captain reports that Wednesday morning it blew a gale and considerable difficulty was experienced in managing the schooner. After a hard struggle the jibs were blown entirely clear of the ropes and the wind still increased in force.

After the jibs were gone it was difficult to keep the schooner on her course. At length a hurricane carried off the mainsail and soon after the vessel began to leak. This occurred 25 miles off Boone Island. In spite of all the efforts of the crew, who were several times in danger of losing their lives, the schooner filled and settled to the water's edge, the lumber keeping her up and saving the lives of the crew. Previous to this the vessel had lost her entire deck-load.

On the deck the captain and crew remained two days and two nights. In the cabin were apples and cabbages but they could not get at them, as the vessel was full of water. They had nothing to eat but dry flour. Occasionally an apple would float to the top and this would be eagerly devoured. The wind was cold and biting and nearly all perished from exposure.

They became thoroughly benumbed and some of them lost the use of their hands by reason of the freezing spray. When rescued the crew—John Stearns, Perry Davis and Arthur Dawes—only saved some of the clothes they wore and those were in bad condition. The captain is trying to get a tug to look for his vessel.

Resolutions of Respect

Whereas, The sorrowful intelligence has reached Empire Lodge, I O of G T that after many weary days of suffering our brother, Stacey S Ken, has been removed, we do hereby

DIRECTIONS.

For Catarrh, Hay Fever, Cold in the Head, etc., insert with little finger a particle of the Balm into the nostrils; draw strong breath through the nose. It will be absorbed, cleansing and healing the diseased membrane. For Deafness, Apply a particle into the ear.

ELY'S CREAM BALM,

Having gained an enviable reputation, displacing all other preparations in the vicinity of its discovery, is, on its merits alone, recognized as a wonderful remedy wherever known. A fair trial will convince the most skeptical of its curative powers. It effectually cleanses the nasal passages of Catarrhal virus, causing healthy secretions, allays inflammation and irritation, protects the membranal linings of the head from additional colds, completely heals the sores and restores the sense of taste and smell. Beneficial results are realized by a few applications. A thorough treatment as directed will cure Catarrh. As a household remedy for cold in the head it is unequaled. The Balm is easy to use and agreeable. Sold by druggists at 50 cents. On receipt of 50 cents will mail a package. Send for circular with full information.

ELY'S CREAM BALM CO, Owego, N Y.

To the Honorable Judge of Probate for the County of Penobscot:

The undersigned administrator of the estate of Emily Palmer, late of Bradford in said County deceased respectfully represents that the goods and chattels rights and credits of said deceased are not sufficient to pay her just debts and charges of administration.

Wherefore your petitioner prays your Honor to grant him power to sell by license of Court at public or private sale and convey the whole of the following described real estate of the deceased (including the reversion of the widow's dower therein) as the residue would be greatly depreciated by a sale of any portion of it:

The late homestead of said deceased [illegible] 100 acres, with buildings thereon and all rights and privileges, all in said Bradford to satisfy said debts expenses of sale, and charges of administration.

To the Honorable Judge of Probate for the County of Penobscot:

The undersigned, Guardian of Helen S and Walter E Plumly, minor heirs of David S Plumly late of Lincoln, in said County, deceased respectfully represents that said minors are seized and possessed of the following described real estate viz: The said Helen S of Lot Twelve (12) in Range Four, and Lot Twelve in Range Five in Burlington, in said County, see Registry of Deeds for said County, Vol 45, page 28, and said Walter E Plumly of one hundred acres of land on the westerly end of Lot Number Fifty five in Woodville Plantation in said County it being the same described in deeds recorded in the Registry of Deeds for said County, Volume 45, Page 28, and Vol 201, page 573.

That it would be for the benefit of said minors that said real estate should be sold and the proceeds thereof put out at interest, or otherwise used for their benefit.

She therefore prays that license may be granted her to sell and convey the above described real estate at public or private sale, according to the requirement of law.

AN OPEN LETTER

—FROM—

W. F. SHAW,

—TO—

HIS PATRONS AND THE PUBLIC.

The undersigned, dealer in Boots and Shoes, Hats and Caps, Gloves, Umbrellas, etc., etc., at NO. 20 MAIN STREET, would most respectfully announce to his patrons and the public generally, that on and after July 1st, the credit system at his establishment will be abolished, and no sales will be made except strictly for cash.

This new departure is not made without having been carefully considered. The undersigned is aware that several of his best customers who are persons of means and whose word is as good as the gold, may probably feel offended, yet a little reflection will convince them that they will be benefitted by the change. It is the earnest desire and honest determination of the undersigned to give to his customers the best goods at the lowest possible prices. This can only be accomplished by the adoption of a cash system. By this means the salaries of book-keepers and persons to make collections are saved, and the undersigned, with the cash in hand, will be enabled to take advantage of the market and thus secure bargains which will benefit his patrons. His expenses will be greatly reduced, no bad bills will be incurred, he will not then be now be obliged to carry on his books a large amount of indebtedness to the concern, on which, of course, there is no interest, and some of which cannot be collected. It will cost the undersigned a painful effort to refuse credit to his true and tried friends, but the rule once adopted, must be rigidly enforced. He sincerely believes that every reflecting person will approve of his course, and he earnestly hopes that his patrons may see that the adoption of a cash system must be mutually beneficial. He also desires to assure his customers, one and all, that they will ever receive the most courteous treatment, and pledges them that they shall receive the full benefit arising from the change, guaranteeing to them better bargains than would be possible to obtain under any other system of conducting business.

Goods may be returned if not satisfactory, and the money will be cheerfully refunded.

Thanking his patrons for past favors and soliciting a continuance of the same, the undersigned is, very respectfully, the public's obedient servant,

W. F. SHAW.

Fellows' Hypophosphites.

IS A REALLY RELIABLE REMEDY FOR WASTING AND NERVOUS DISEASES.

After numerous experiments Mr. Fellows succeeded in producing this combination of Hypophosphites, which has not only restored him to health, but has since been found as successful in the treatment of diseases emanating from loss of nerve power, and consequently muscular relaxation, viz:

Aphonia (loss of voice),	Neuralgia,
Anæmia,	Nervous Debility,
Chronic Diarrhœa,	Whooping Cough,
Dyspepsia,	Congestion of the Lungs,
Fever and Ague,	Palpitation of the Heart,
Malaria,	Melancholy,
Nervousness,	Mental Depression

MALARIA.

Persons living in Malarious districts may protect themselves from attacks of fever by the use of Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites. Its effects in toning up the system enables us to ward off contagious disorders, and successfully combat disease.

The soluble phosphites and the other life-sustaining principles composing Fellows' Hypophosphites are so carefully proportioned and so judiciously mingled, that their action upon the nerves, muscles and membranes in imparting vitality, strength and healthy action is generally apparent within twenty-four hours, and the good effects experienced are of a permanent character.

has had wonderful success, and an immense sale in every part of the Country. In hundreds of cases it has cured where all else had failed. It is mild, but efficient, CERTAIN IN ITS ACTION, but harmless in all cases.

☞ It cleanses, Strengthens and gives New Life to all the important organs of the body. The natural action of the Kidneys is restored. The Liver is cleansed of all disease, and the Bowels move freely and healthfully. In this way the worst diseases are eradicated from the system.

As it has been proved by thousands that is the most effectual remedy for cleansing the system of all morbid secretions. It should be used in every household as a

SPRING MEDICINE.

Always cures BILIOUSNESS, CONSTIPATION, PILES and all FEMALE Diseases.

It is put up in Dry Vegetable Form, in tin cans, one package of which makes 6 quarts medicine. Also in Liquid Form, very Concentrated for the convenience of those who cannot readily prepare it. It acts with equal efficiency in either form.

Lydia E. Pinkham

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND.

Is a Positive Cure

for all those Painful Complaints and Weaknesses so common to our best female population.

It will cure entirely the worst form of Female Complaints, all ovarian troubles, Inflammation and Ulceration, Falling and Displacements, and the consequent Spinal Weakness, and is particularly adapted to the Change of Life.

It will dissolve and expel tumors from the uterus in an early stage of development. The tendency to cancerous humors there is checked very speedily by its use.

It removes faintness, flatulency, destroys all craving for stimulants, and relieves weakness of the stomach. It cures Bloating, Headaches, Nervous Prostration, General Debility, Sleeplessness, Depression and Indigestion.

That feeling of bearing down, causing pain, weight and backache, is always permanently cured by its use.

It will at all times and under all circumstances act in harmony with the laws that govern the female system.

For the cure of Kidney Complaints of either sex this Compound is unsurpassed.

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND is prepared at 233 and 235 Western Avenue, Lynn, Mass. Price $1. Six bottles for $5. Sent by mail in the form of pills, also in the form of lozenges, on receipt of price, $1 per box for either. Mrs. Pinkham freely answers all letters of inquiry. Send for pamphlet. Address as above. Mention this Paper.

No family should be without LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S LIVER PILLS. They cure constipation, biliousness, and torpidity of the liver. 25 cents per box.

PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,

No. 76 State st., opposite Kilby, Boston,

Secures Patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Copies of the claims of any Patent furnished by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded at Washington. No agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

R. H. EDDY, Solicitor of Patents.

TESTIMONIALS:

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse.

CHAS. MASON, Commissioner of Patents.

"Inventors cannot employ a person more trustworthy or more capable of securing for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.

EDMUND BURKE,
late Commissioner of Patents."

BOSTON, October 19, 1870.

R. H. EDDY, Esq.—Dear Sir: you procured for me, in 1840, my first patent. Since then you have acted for and advised me in hundreds of cases, and procured many patents, reissues and extensions. I have occasionally employed the best agencies in New York, Philadelphia and Washington, but I still give you almost the whole of my business in your line, and advise others to employ you.

Yours truly, GEORGE DRAPER.

HOSTETTER'S

CELEBRATED

BITTERS

Diminished Vigor

Is reimbursed in great measure, to those troubled with weak kidneys, by a judicious use of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which invigorates and stimulates without exciting the urinary organs. In conjunction with its influence upon them, it corrects acidity, improves appetite, and is in every way conducive to health and nerve repose. Another marked quality is its control over fever and ague, and its power of preventing it. For sale by all Druggists and Dealers generally.

LETTER CARRIERS.

All letters are delivered free by carriers when addressed to street and number. People should inform their correspondents of above and have their letters addressed accordingly.

Persons leaving their address at the General Delivery can also have their letters sent, but it is much more convenient to have the street and number on, and they will be delivered earlier than if the comp is put on at the office. Carriers make two deliveries daily, the first trip supplying the extremes of their routes.

Collections are made morning and evening in season for important mails.

Holidays the Carrier's Window will be open for the delivery of letters from 8½ to 9½ A. M., and from 7½ to 8½ P. M. (Sundays from 8½ to 9½ A. M.

Any irregularities in the Carrier department should be reported to the office.

ENVELOPES.

No additional charge will be made for printing the name and request to return, across the left hand upper corner of the envelopes furnished by the Post Office Department, (samples of which may be seen at the Cashier's window) when ordered in lots of not less than 500.

A request for the return of a letter to the writer, if unclaimed within thirty days, or less, written or printed, with the writer's name, post office and State, across the left end of the envelope, on the face side, will be complied with.

☞ The public are earnestly recommended to procure Stamped Envelopes with printed return request, as the expense is less, and letters thus endorsed, if not delivered to the addressed, are returned to the writer free of charge.

First class envelopes of above form sold at $32.20 per thousand.

Stamps cut from Stamped Envelopes cannot be used to prepay postage. The use of such Stamps is punishable by a fine of fifty dollars.

Stamped Envelopes, spoiled in directing, are redeemed at [illegible]

HOOSAC TUNNEL ROUTE.

The Only Line leading from Boston which runs Through Sleeping Cars both to St. Louis and Chicago without Change.

Until further notice, Express trains for the West via this route will leave Causeway Street Depot of the Fitchburg Railroad, Boston, at the following hours, Sundays excepted:

8.30 A. M. Special Chicago Express, with Drawing Room Car attached for Rochester, where connection is made with Through Sleeping Cars for Chicago and all points West.

3.00 P. M. Fast St. Louis Express, with Sleeping Car attached for St. Louis, reaching St. Louis at 8 A. M. the second morning, connecting with trains for Kansas, Colorado, Texas, and all parts of the extreme South West.

6.00 P. M. Pacific Express, with Sleeping Car attached for Chicago, reaching Chicago at 9.30 A. M. the second morning, connecting for California and all parts of the West and North West.

Passengers from Bangor, and all points in Maine, travelling by the Boston & Maine, can be landed in Boston in close proximity to the Fitchburg R. R. Depot—thus avoiding much of the annoyance of a transfer across the city.

Through tickets, at lowest rates, and berths in sleeping cars, together with through baggage checks, may be obtained on application to

A. W. BENSON,

Ticket Agent at the Maine Central Depot, who is the only authorized Agent for the Hoosac Tunnel Route in Bangor.
